Wreck of the Roanoke--Harrowing Details.

BOSTON, April 2.—The schooner Addie Good arrived from Surinam, reports on the 27th ult. that she fell in with the wreck of the brig Roanoke, Nyle, from Philadelphia for Porto Cabello, and took off William Maguire Leamer who had been on the wreck 9 days. All the others of the crew, eight in number, and 3 passengers, Mr. and Mrs. Dallett, of New York, and a Spanish gentleman, had washed overboard and drowned.

BOSTON, April 2.—Details of the wreck of the brig Roanoke are most harrowing. The following is the statement of the only survivor: Left Philadelphia March 17th on brig Roanoke, Capt. Wilkie, with a crew of nine men and three passengers, the latter were Mr. and Mrs. Dallet and a Spanish genteman. On the 18th encountered a heavy gale which carried away sails and everything movable on deck; finally the vessel became unmanageable and broached to, and the masts were cut away, every sea making a clean breast over her. On the 20th saw a schooner and made signals of distress to her, but she continued on her course. Had she laid to all hands would probably have been saved; had a little preserved fruit and some lager beer that day; on the 22d there was a heavy northwest gale, the sea breaking over us clean fore and aft. The vessel had commenced to break up. The captain wished to take to the boats to save life, but was persuaded not to do it. In the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Dallet were exhausted. They shook hands with the captain and mate, bade them good-bye and expressed a hope that they would all meet in Heaven. Mr. Dallet took his wife's waterproof and wrapped it around her head. They embraced each other, and the sea soon swept them overboard. The Spanish gentleman soon followed, said his prayers, wrapped a quilt around his head and leaped overboard in a delirious state. Soon after this a sea carried away the after deck, with the captain, steward, one sailor and a boy. The stern broke away and went next, with the mate and second mate, and a boy was drowned nearly alongside. The second mate was on the poop when last seen. Only two men were then left with myself. Everything was gone down to the lower deck. We were

A Withdrawal of the Troops.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—In the cabinet today there was a discussion of Southern affairs and the need of immediate action. Secretary Thompson was most uncompromising in expressing his opinion that the federal government had no right to interfere in South Carolina, and that the State should be left absolutely free to settle her own disputes under her own laws in her own way. Secretary Schurz was extremely cordial and liberal in all he said. No vote was taken, but an expression of opinion by different members show that on a division a majority would be in favor of the immediate withdrawal of the troops from the State.

The Cabinet at Work.

CHICAGO, April 2.—The Journal's Washington special says the cabinet this morning assembled at 9:30 and considered first the nature of the reply to Hampton's letter; second, instructions to the Louisiana commission.

Troops Ordered Out of the South Carolina State House.

At a Cabinet meeting this morning the Secretary of War was directed to prepare an order transferring the troops from the State House in Columbia, S. C., to their camp. When Hampton was informed in advance of official notification that an order would be issued for the removal of the troops from the State House, he expressed himself gratified, but said it was no more than expected from the principles announced in the inaugural address. He was somewhat interested to know whether the order was to take immediate effect, as he wished to be present in Columbia when it was executed. However, as a precautionary terday in which he declines to listen to any terms of compromise from the commission, and stating that he would not accept anything short of an unconditional recognition of his rights as Governor of Louisiana. The telegram was presented to the President.

The Louisiana Commission's Instructions.

It is stated at the executive mansion that no formal or written instructions will be given the Louisiana commission, but that they have by conversation with the President been fully placed in possession of his views and wishes in regard to their mission.

More Deserters from Packard.

NEW ORLEANS, April 2—Two returning board members of the Packard House—Fred Gobb, of Ascension, and N. A. Duran, of Bassier parish—were to-day sworn as members and took seats in the Nicholls House, which now has 58 returning board members.

F. E. Heath, of Webster parish, returned by the board, but not elected, and thereto fore occupying a seat in the Packard House, appeared before the Nicholls legislature and was accorded the privileges of the floor. He said: Recognizing that the government now established by Nicholls is the only government in this State that can give permanent peace and prosperity to our troubled people, I feel it my duty to aid as much as possible in bringing about harmony and good feeling. I tender my resignation of all claims that I may have on the general assembly. In order that my appearance here may not be misunderstood, I desire to avow now, as in the past, my fidelity to the great principles of the Republican party.

Pensacola Collectorship.

Humphreys, who was turned out of the position as agent of the Southern Express Co. at Pensacola on account of being a Republican elector, will be appointed collector of customs at that port.

Coinage in March.

The coinage of the mints of the United States during March was gold, $5,873,000; trade dollars, $391,000; silver change, $1,074,000; total number of pieces struck, $8,615,650; total value of gold and silver, $8,443,000.

Chinese Rows.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 1.—This afternoon a row occurred at a Chinese theater on Jackson street, during which some dozen shots were fired and one or two Chinamen more or less seriously wounded. The injured men were carried off by their friends. About 9 this evening, a Chinaman named Fung Hong, attacked one of his countrymen by name Wong Hong, corner Dupont and Jackson streets. The attacking party drew two huge Chinese knives, each about a foot and a half long and weighing a pound or two, with which he literally chopped and carved his victim, cutting his hands to pieces as he raised them to shield his head, and inflicting several fearful gashes on his head, fracturing his skull in two places. The wounded man was also found, on examination to have two bullet holes in his head, but whether inflicted by Fung Wong is uncertain. The latter was arrested as he was running away, after a fierce resistance, which rendered the liberal use of the policeman's club necessary, and the wounded man was taken to the city prison for medical treatment, though evidently in a dying condition. He is a very wealthy and respectable Chinaman, being one of the proprietors of the big Chinese restaurant on Jackson street and having considerable valuable real estate in the neighborhood. His partner states that he knows no cause for the murder, as Wong Hong was not a man to engage in street brawls. His assailant was a Chinaman of the lower order recently arrived here from the interior.

CHICO MURDERER BROUGHT TO TRIAL.

Laborers' Union Meeting at Chico.

CHICO, April 1.—A meeting of the most prominent and respectable members of the Labor Union was held last evening to consider the whole matter of the late outrages, which were deplored and no sympathy manifested for the guilty parties. The actions of the Council of Nine were repudiated and denounced as not being authorized or sanctioned by the organization, and in order to restore peace and confidence in the community it was unanimously resolved to disband and dissolve the organization. The president, Mr. Aite, will publish resolutions to that effect in a few days.

Citizens' Meeting.

The citizens' committee of safety had a large meeting last night, when it was resolved that the executive committee be recommended to tender the sheriff any assistance he may require for the safe keeping of the prisoners at Oroville. Messrs. Gifford and Hutton go to Oroville to assist District Attorney Freer in arranging matters for the grand jury, which meets to-morrow. They have also been retained by the executive committee to assist in the prosecution. There is one more to be arrested who is thought to have had a hand in the attempt to burn old Chinatown. The city is quiet and order reigns to-day, the excitement having died away.

It was snowing well in thirty miles of Chico yesterday at the Sutter House.

April Fooled.

OROVILLE, April —This morning a report spread through town that the Chico prisoners had escaped, and hundreds flocked to the court house only to find it was the first of April.

The Chico Prisoners.

Sheriff Scheiden has called to his assistance a body of men who, in case of emergency, can be relied on to do duty. The prisoners are allowed no more liberty than is consistent with the laws of health. Every precaution is taken to prevent them making a stampede, and as soon as the jailers enter the prison parties are on the outside ready to respond to any call that may be made upon them. To-morrow morning the grand jury men and discharged all who were under the Order of Canonicate, leaving them to him out if they dared.

Panama Affairs.

NEW YORK, April 2.—The Panama brings the following, under date of March 23d: The Panama Herald has received official notification from the Colombian minister of finance that within six months, pursuant to the stipulations of its contract to put into road on the Pacific side as far as the Noah Culebra, Perico, or some point Flamenco, or any other point near anchorage may be found for

TUESDAY MORNING, APRIL 3, 1877.

PLEDGES KEPT.

In his efforts so far to put the civil service on a better basis the President has encountered less opposition than might have been expected. There was a hot flash at the outset, but it speedily subsided, owing to the hopelessness of a contest with an executive who was taking a course which seemed likely to bring a number of Democratic Senators to his support in case certain ones of his own party should withhold their co-operation. The latter saw the hazard of breaking with the President unless they were sure of beating him. After reflection they decided to yield, at least for the present, and allow him to begin without further hindrance the work of fulfilling his pledges to the country. But to suppose that the struggle is entirely over and that a sure and lasting victory has been gained for better methods in the civil service would be quite delusive. There will be further efforts to assert the old practice of employing "influence" to secure appointments and removals, and to reward adherents and followers for personal and party service. In and out of Congress there will be political managers to make a fight for the "patronage" which under the old system constituted their chief hold upon power. So easy a victory over a gross and long-continued abuse should not be mistaken for a permanent and unquestionable triumph. He knows little of the ways of ambitious workers in politics who supposes that the fight for spoils is forever ended. It will certainly be renewed as soon as any conditions offer that promise success. The holders of power and dispensers of influence find themselves surrounded by a host of hungry dependents to whom necessity is law, and who impelled by a secret consciousness that their political ascendency is destined to be of short duration because they are not qualified to maintain it, strive only to make the best use of their time by providing for themselves at the public expense without the slightest regard to any consideration of public advantage. More than anything else it was the firm stand taken by Gov. Hayes in relation to this abuse in his letter of acceptance that led to his success. But for his unequivocal utterances on this subject he would have been beaten out of sight. He now shows that he has the firmness to pursue the course he so distinctly outlined, even in the face of besetting difficulties and at the risk of alienating many who were among his most active supporters.

RAILWAY INTERESTS DEPRESSED.

According to the Railway Age, more than 20 per cent of all bonds outstanding on railways built in the United States are in default; and Poor's Manual completes the picture by showing that out of 691 railroads, only 165 paid dividends of any sort last year. The debts from these investments calculated on the present value of the roads and their prospects, aggregate a sum that approaches the magnitude of our national debt. Much of this loss is due to the wasteful prodigality with which the roads were built; much of it to the depression of the times and the folly that interposed the inflation that prevailed a few years since as a manifestation of true and durable prosperity. Foreign loans for new railway enterprises will not be possible again, and probably not for many years. Such hopes of success as are entertained must be based entirely on the chance of obtaining aid from the Government; and when the tests and experience of the last twelve years appeal to, the opponents of the policy that asks Government to assume further obligations of this nature have an argument which they are likely to make invincible. Regretfully as we of the "remote" and "unfriended" West may view it, this is very nearly the situation. There was when the Northwest could have obtained railway connections almost as easy as to ask for them. That was when the country was favoring the policy which furnished Iowa, Wisconsin, Kansas and other States with railroads, supplied that great central line through to the Pacific. Here was the tide in our affairs, but it was not taken at the flood. The first impression of railway interests and the lesson of experience that has followed so many enterprises of this description, of which the railway authorities may be quoted make a striking example, shows the real discouragements of the situation. Popular enthusiasm is well in its way, but since it will not build cars, and the disagreeable facts may as well be considered.

A PROBABLE RESULT.

It may be anticipated with a great degree of certainty that the Chamberlain government will go overboard in South Carolina. The withdrawal of the troops from the State House looks like the beginning of the end. The order for their withdrawal was unavoidable, since it was obviously impossible to maintain a state of things so wholly irregular. Nothing but the higher law of necessity, the most urgent and overpowering, could justify it, and no such degree of necessity exists. South Carolina ought to be able to settle this controversy within herself and by peaceful means. The general government certainly cannot persist in acting so far beyond its province as to hold the capitol building of a State for the advantage of a political party. It is not a question of fidelity to the national government at all. Its authority is not questioned. It is time for the government to retreat from an embarrassing and untenable position. But there can be little doubt what the effect will be on the fortunes of the Chamberlain party. Events seem to be pressing toward a like result in Louisiana also. It does not require any great share of the gift of prophecy to foretell that, under the circumstances now existing, the Chamberlain and Packard governments, as soon as the supporting hand of national authority is withdrawn, will yield to the pressure upon them and be crushed as houses of cards.

THE COLUMBIA RIVER.

Inquiry is made whether the Columbia river was known to geographers before Gray's visit in 1792. Authorities generally give him the honor of the discovery, and his event is almost universally accepted as the starting point in the history of Oregon. It is familiar to all that it was in consequence of this discovery, and by constantly urging the claim founded upon it, that the Government of the United States was able to maintain its asserted right to the country in the controversy with Great Britain. Gray's discovery has therefore been brought into such prominence that the honor is popularly conceded to him, and the great river will always bear the name of his ship; but it is a well established fact that the river was seen by a Spanish navigator many years before Gray entered it. More than a century ago considerable Spanish colonies were already established on the coast of California. Several expeditions of discovery were sent along the coast to the north. One of these, from San Blas, commanded by Bruno Heceta, sailed in March, 1775, and went as far north as Nootka Sound. Returning south, Heceta saw, on the 15th August of the same year, in latitude 46 degrees and 17 minutes, according to his computation, the mouth of a great river, from which rushed so strong a current that he was unable to enter. In the charts published soon after, the entrance was laid down as Rio de San Roque. The next information about the river was furnished by Jonathan Carver's book of travels, published in London in 1778. Carver had spent two years in the upper Mississippi region, where he obtained from the Indians and French some meager and imperfect accounts of the great river of the west. Meares, a lieutenant in the English navy visited the coast in 1788, looking for the river but did not find it, and expressly declared in his report that no such stream as that spoken of by Heceta and laid down on the Spanish charts existed. Vancouver had likewise examined the coast, and discredited Heceta's discovery. He even declined to believe it after Gray had reported the re-discovery of the river.

It would be hard to say what right a person who steals chickens another through contributions to newspapers has to demand that his name shall not be revealed to the person who is assailed. The Standard thinks, however, that the name should not be disclosed unless the journal set is threatened with a suit at law, or with a challenge to fight; when, if he thinks the situation serious, he may tell the aggrieved person who the assailant is. It seems to us better for an editor to do what is right from other motives than from fear of consequences to himself or to his paper.

Charles Cowden Clarke, a favorite and popular writer on British poetical and prose authors, died in Genoa recently. His wife, Mary, is also celebrated in the same department of letters, and her services to Shaksperian literature have been acknowledged far and wide. Her "Shakspeare Concordance" is a work of great value and vast labor.

The Victoria Standard complains that the attitude of the local government makes it good as certain that the island railway will not be built. The construction of the main line is also virtually given up.

California papers are rejoicing that the sage pastures of their desert counties give a fine yield of honey, car loads of which are furnished for the Eastern States and even for England.

The Battle of the Aliqua still rages furiously all along the line. Our readers hear from a new correspondent to-day.

VOLUME [illegible]. PORTLAND, OREGON, MONDAY, APRIL 3, 1877. NUMBER [illegible].

CITY.

The Port Townsend Argus has the following interesting [illegible]: A few days since Captain Frank [illegible], keeper of Dungeness Lighthouse, found on the beach a claret bottle, corked, [illegible] Breaking the bottle open he found a business card of Jacobs [illegible] of Portland, Oregon, with the well known [illegible] of Lyman Blum, printed in red [illegible] commercial agent of that house. [illegible] of the card is the following legend [illegible] to be written by the gay and festive [illegible] as follows: 'Steamer Geo. W. [illegible] 1877, off Cape Blanco. [illegible] Portland, Oregon. Weather fine; [illegible] all well. Stateroom 42. L. L. [illegible]' In the words of the [illegible] of Whitby Island, we may [illegible] 'God are a gay Lutherian' [illegible] joke of the thing, but the [illegible] consists in the fact that [illegible] overboard off Cape Blanco, [illegible] Columbia river, should be [illegible] spit, more than 100 [illegible] it was thrown over, thus [illegible] to the mass of evidence [illegible] there is a northerly current [illegible] coast in-shore from [illegible] varying in intensity from [illegible] of bays and rivers. [illegible] this bottle has thus been [illegible] months—shows that numerous outflow from the Columbia [illegible] out to sea, from whence the [illegible] slowly drifted it to the entrance of Fuca and up the Straits [illegible] a distance of over 60 miles. Decision.—Judge Shattuck [illegible] decision involving the [illegible] of the Lock Bill passed by [illegible] and the State power in [illegible] question arose on a writ [illegible] by the board of canal [illegible] against the Willamette [illegible] Locks Co. to furnish certain [illegible] of freight and number of [illegible] through the locks in accordance [illegible] terms of the lock bill [illegible] it was a reasonable [illegible] within the general power of [illegible] for the public interest and [illegible]. In close connection with [illegible] to the above case is the [illegible] decision of the Supreme [illegible] States, in the case of [illegible] Illinois, which reaches [illegible] decision by Judge Shattuck [illegible] a number of private firms [illegible] Chicago for the purpose [illegible] and transferring it between [illegible] Lake, Oregon. Weather fine; [illegible] After the erection of these [illegible] State of Illinois passed an [illegible] charges for storage of grain [illegible] Court after considering [illegible] nearly a year after argument, [illegible] decided the Illinois law to be [illegible] is enunciated that when [illegible] is devoted to a use in which [illegible] interest, the effect is to grant [illegible] interest in that use, and it [illegible] be controlled by the public [illegible] good to the extent of the in- [illegible] Thus invoking the same [illegible] which States regulate the [illegible] and compensation of [illegible] ferrymen, etc. The [illegible] pronounces it a lead- [illegible] but it will take rank in the [illegible] well known Dartmouth

Fine Trade.—While the north [illegible] was standing toward this city [illegible] and was passing over the [illegible] Island and Canemah, a [illegible] came near occurring. [illegible] some one set fire to [illegible] wood only a short dis- [illegible] from Canemah bound [illegible] and the express train [illegible] was still standing. Se- [illegible] afternoon train reached be- [illegible] of the forest fell with a [illegible] the huge trunk crossing the [illegible] Fortunately there was a long, straight [illegible] beyond the point where the [illegible] or it might become our unpleasant [illegible] to record a disastrous railway casualty. Three sharp and vicious toots, [illegible] down the brakes with a vengeance, [illegible] were reversed, and the train [illegible] a halt before the tree was reached. The trunk [illegible] decayed, and in falling had been [illegible] split, so that the pieces were soon [illegible] the track. By running a little [illegible] around, the train reached here on [illegible] north of the obstruction a short distance in the rear. Had the train [illegible] been a passenger train, a disaster would have been in- [illegible]

Early Days.—Few names are more [illegible] known among the earliest pioneers [illegible] of his Northwest coast than that [illegible] H. H. Spalding, who departed this [illegible] years ago. His surviving widow [illegible] a small, but very neat monument [illegible], which will mark the last resting [illegible] the old missionary, whose entire life [illegible] were untiringly devoted to the [illegible] civilizing and christianizing the [illegible] country. Mr. Wm. Young has [illegible] a monument to his memory. [illegible] Italian marble slab, standing, as [illegible] about five feet high. On the slab [illegible] following inscription has been neatly [illegible]

Death.—Mr. John Curtis met a [illegible] death early yesterday morning [illegible] Linn county, the particulars of [illegible] furnished by a correspondent: "He [illegible] his team up in front of Macy & [illegible] blacksmith shop and put a harrow [illegible], and was in the act of starting [illegible] when he fell back but raised up in [illegible] shock, the team started a little as they were [illegible] at, but, again fell, it is supposed [illegible] apoplectic fit, and no doubt died [illegible] instantly. The team ran down Smith [illegible] first, where they turned and ran to [illegible] part of town with the lifeless body [illegible] the harrow in the wagon box. He was [illegible] immediately taken to his late residence, [illegible] whence the funeral will take [illegible] to-morrow. Mr. Curtis was an old and [illegible] citizen of this place, having resided [illegible] here since 1852. He leaves a wife and one [illegible] at home, besides numerous relatives, [illegible] to mourn his loss."

Revenue Commissioner's Report.—Mr. J. [illegible] Merryman, deputy collector of customs and [illegible] U. S. shipping commissioner at the [illegible] Astoria, submitted the following report [illegible] was ordered filed: "I herewith respectfully submit a report of my official acts for the [illegible] ending December 31, 1876: Number seamen shipped, 43; number seamen discharged, 105; amount of fees received for registering and discharging seamen, $138 50; amount of collection on account of wages and effects of deceased seamen and paid over, $2."

Musical Concert.—The Sunday [illegible] concert at Lee Chapel in East Portland last was, we understand, a decided success. Much praise was accorded the [illegible] and participants by visitors for the [illegible] and variety of the entertainment [illegible] was reported large.

Assaulted with an Ax.—Sunday two boys—aged respectively about 12 and 13 years—residing in East Portland, became involved in a quarrel over some trifling matter, when one [illegible] picked up an ax and struck his companion. The keen edge of the ax came in contact with the little fellow's abdomen just above the groin, inflicting a fearful gash. The assault was made under one of the trestle bridges not far from the railway track, and was witnessed by several boys. After receiving the blow, the wounded boy fell helpless to the ground, while his bowels protruded from the gash. Parties who were standing some distance away saw the assault and the boy fall, and started to his relief. When the other boys observed them coming, they fled and made their escape. The boy was taken to a neighboring house and Dr. Raffety summoned. His injuries are said to be of a serious nature. We are unable to obtain the names of the parties concerned in the affair. So far as is known, no arrest has been made.

United Irishmen Reunion.—This evening the united Irishmen and their many friends will hold a pleasant reunion at Good Templar Hall. A most enjoyable time may be anticipated. The exercises will open with a short instrumental concert, after which is to follow the formal presentation of an elegant and costly banner by a number of ladies to the society. The banner will be presented on behalf of the ladies by Miss Maggie Burke, and will be received by S. J. McCormick, Esq., president of the society, who will respond in fitting terms. At the conclusion of these interesting exercises, formality will be laid aside, the hall cleared and dancing commence. A large number of invitations have been distributed and the large hall will no doubt be crowded to its capacity. Only fortunate holders of invitations will be admitted.

They also take this opportunity to appeal again to the public for second-hand clothing, which is much needed at the "Home," and which can be left at Mrs. Congle's or Mrs. Ainsworth's.

SCHOOL ELECTION.

The annual school election which came off yesterday proved quite exciting, and was a warmly contested race. Great interest was felt in the result of the contest, and a large vote was polled. At 2 o'clock sharp the polls opened, and closed at 6. The following figures briefly tell the story:

A. H. Morgan	424
B. Killin	295
Morgan's majority	129

FOR CLERK.

Geo. W. Murray	410

AMUSEMENTS.

Dramatic Season.—Mr. John Jack, after a successful professional tour through Eastern Oregon and Washington Territory, will return to Port and the last of the present week with his company. A new dramatic season will be inaugurated at New Market theater, commencing Saturday evening, 7th inst. The season will be brief, including thirteen nights and matinee performances. Mr. Jack informs us that he has strengthened his company by the addition of several new members, and proposes to present, in succession, a number of new and attractive novelties in the theatrical line. The opening piece will be John Brougham's play of "John Garth." A matinee performance will be given Saturday afternoon. During the season, Byron's great and successful London comedy of "Our Boys" will be produced.

SOCIAL EVENTS.

Two clubs hold parties at Day & Brenner's (Progress Club Rooms) academy now. The new club this evening.

The occasion was the anniversary of the 75th birthday of Mrs. Bachman. The old lady never fails to be present on occasions of social character at the house, and enjoys the amusements fully as well as those who take active part in them. Many returns of the day.

CARD FROM MR. TEAL.

To the Editor of the Oregonian:

I observe in this morning's issue of the Oregonian a statement that Mr. B. Goldsmith and myself have disposed of our stock in the Willamette Transportation and Locks Company to Messrs. Corbett & Failing. The statement, so far as I am concerned, is incorrect. I have heard that Mr. Goldsmith and his associates have disposed of their stock in that company. I have never sold to any one, at any time, a share of said stock; on the contrary, I own now the stock which I owned since the formation of the company, and the same is not for sale. JOS. TEAL.

Portland, April 2, 1877.

THE CAMP CREEK MINES.

Portland, April 2, 1877.

To the Editor of the Oregonian:

In view of the fact that the public at the present time are interested in the mineral resources of the State of Oregon, I have concluded to write a brief and accurate account of the Camp Creek Consolidated Gold and Silver Mining Company, located in Wasco county, State of Oregon, being a part of the now celebrated silver wells, or mud springs. This company located their claims on the 6th of November, 1876, and are duly incorporated having complied with the laws governing mining corporations of this State.

Their claims compose about thirty acres of what is considered to be the richest portion in that section of country. I have been informed by members of the company that their claims have been thoroughly tested by experienced and practical miners to the depth of 35 feet, finding rich prospects from surface to depth mentioned. They have also discovered a ledge of decomposed quartz said to be very rich. The company have purchased an engine suitable for their mines, which they intend to transport to their claims as soon as the roads will permit. They have secured the services of one of the best assayers and miners in the State. They expect to commence active operations during the month of May with the most sanguine expectations of success.

The officers of the company are: Chas. K. Besselieu, President; James R. Barron, Vice President; Mark A. Bell, Secretary.

The following gentlemen constitute the Board of Directors: Chas. K. Besselieu, James R. Barron, Wm. Brown, Henry Hopkins and Mark A. Bell.

The attention of the public is respectfully called to the record of assays previously made and published.

Wishing the company may realize their highest ambition's goal.

Remain, yours truly,

L. A. NEWBY.

Good Advice.

Now is the time of year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, etc. Every family should have a bottle of Boschee's German Syrup. Don't allow for one moment that cough to take hold of your child, your family or yourself. Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Croup, Hemorrhages and other fatal diseases may set in. Although it is true German Syrup is curing thousands of these dreaded diseases, yet it is much better to have it at hand when three doses will cure you. One bottle will last your whole family a winter and keep you safe from danger. If you are consumptive, do not rest until you have tried this remedy. Sample bottles 10 cents; regular size 75 cents. TUESDAY MORNING, APRIL 3, 1877.

BATTLE OF THE LAVA.

Marion County, March 29, 1877.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

As the Hon. J. W. Nesmith, in your issue of March 15th, seems to doubt the veracity of the statement of the Hon. John Minto, backed as it was by a reference to the venerable Dan. Waldo, R. C. Geer, W. King, J. Brown and others who participated in the affair, I consider it my duty as a participant to give a correct statement of the facts, as near as I can remember, and if the Hon. ex-Senator or ex-Governor Curry are still inclined to consider it the "Romance of History," they can settle the point by referring to the above mentioned gentlemen, or the Rev. Elias Cox, of Bethany, Marion county, who was also in the fight. From 1843, and how long before I know not, the Klamath Indians were in the habit of bringing into this valley a number of Indian children as slaves or "alytes," as they styled them, these they traded to the Indians of the valley and the French settlers for Indian horses. These Indians made it a point to pass the winter in the valley, depreciating on the whites, killing cattle, robbing houses and intimidating the fearful for blackmail; and as they intermarried with the Molallas, they chose the section of country inhabited by that tribe for their temporary residence.

This tribal relation made it very convenient and somewhat pleasable for the Molallas to lay any disagreeable responsibilities upon their visitors, the Klamaths, who in turn seemed to care little for their reputation so far from home. The Molallas, too, were notorious depredators, killing stock, stealing horses, coming from houses, extorting provisions and good dinners from women in the absence of their protectors, but no charge of rascality could be made to stick against a Molalla, while the Klamath could be made the scapegoat of such sins. The depredations during the winter of 1847-8 had increased to an alarming extent, and there was a growing conviction among the inhabitants of the eastern portion of Marion county that the Klamaths must leave home.

To increase the general anxiety, two strange Indians from east of the Cascade mountains, Cayuse spies or emissaries, arrived at the Klamath and Molalla camp about the 1st of March. The whites in the vicinity of the Indian camp, being apprised of their hostile intent and fearing a general outbreak in concert with the Cayuses now opening hostile, determined to thwart their designs. Accordingly John Warnock, M. Whitlock, R. Miller, Wm. Lang-ois, Lauren Thomas, John Stanton, M. Wilkins and several others started to the Indian camp to obtain positive information upon the subject in which the white families of this valley were so vitally interested. When halfway to the camp, they met the Cayuses returning on foot and quietly took them prisoners. To all questions as to their business, they refused to answer, and spoke very defiantly; they also said that the Klamaths would not leave, that they would take to the brush, and the whites could not dislodge them. The prisoners were placed upon the point of a precipice, about 40 feet high, over the Abiqua, and three men left to guard them, while the remainder of the party proceeded to the camp to question Coaster, the Mola in chief. Coaster refused to be interviewed concerning the spies, and claimed the right of the Klamaths to stay, and that he would protect them. During this interview guns were heard in the direction of the spies, and soon after the guard were met coming into camp bringing the news that the spies had jumped off the precipice into the river and fled, and the guards had fired on them, but without effect.

A short time after daybreak on the third and fourth of March the combined force of the Klamaths and Molallas, armed and equipped in war paint and feathers, executing their tunes with the war whoop, presented themselves at the house of John Warnock and demanded that he should go with them as interpreter to Uncle Dicky Miller's, whom they considered a hyas tyee among the whites, and of whom they demanded five horses as payment for the two Cayuses killed the day before. The foundation of their claim, however, was false, as Mr. Warnock had seen the spies alive and well the day before, and one of them showed him a lock of hair which he said had been cut from his head by a bullet shot by one of the guard. So Uncle Dick gave them a decided negative to their demands; his pantry suffered, however. The passage of that warlike cavalcade of some 75 Indians over a distance of two miles, was not unrecorded, and before the sun went down the white inhabitants of Molalla, Lowell Prairie, Wesley Hills and the Santiam were aroused into motion, and before the Indians had gained Dicky Miller's house, the settlers had heard the sound of actual arms, mixed their rifles and lead to gether around the hostile savages, who sought the fastnesses of their rock walled and brush covered camp on the Abiqua bottom.

The 23 morning the settlers had assembled in considerable force. There was Capt. Allen Davis with a Company of horsemen, Capt. Geer, with his Company Cap. Dicky Miller with his neighbors,—all of the companies being considerably depleted by the call for the Cayuse war. After a council of war, Uncle Dan'l Waldo was chosen commander-in-chief, and the troops proceeded in two divisions, the horsemen on the North or prairie side, the footmen on the South and densely brushy side of the Abiqua, to invest the Molalla and Klamath camp. The first gun was of the South side, half of the proximity of the enemy was a flight of arrows, when the firing on the part of the whites became general. But a short time elapsed until the Chief Kalkin, and two other Indians were killed, when the Klamaths retreated. The Molallas took no part in the engagement and were surrounded. The white troops upon the North side were within a few rods of the affray, but were held in reserve, or rather, could not further any assistance without abandoning their horses, and the surveillance they were keeping over the Molallas, of whose course in the matter, as it was generally. A cold night ensued, but commenced early in the morning and the guard was loaded and consequently dripping, so that after a few discharges in the direction of the fourth of the guns were useless. Under this state of things the troops returned to the place of rendezvous at John Warnock's.

Nothing was known of the retreating Klamaths and fearing lest they might start homeward, committing depredations on their return to the mountains, lives near the Klamath trail, I summoned scouts to care for our families. About 40 remained next morning proceeded up the Abiqua to ascertain the whereabouts of the Klamaths. A slight snow having fallen during the night, their trail was not much noticed until they were tracked to a camp, surrounded by swampy ground, where they could have defended themselves successfully against treble their number. A flight of arrows as before mentioned the whites to the encounter. The action was brief but deadly. The Chief Red Blanket and several others were killed, when the remainder betook themselves to the mountains. One of their squaws being wounded and unable to escape, was commissioned to carry to the survivors the message that they could have three days in which to bury their dead and start home.

The Molallas have given the number of killed repeatedly to their friends among the whites, and that is probably the best evidence obtainable. I give the number as eleven upon the battle ground, and there is evidence to show that one or more died on their return, which was made indeed mournful by the consequent chant of their death song for the unreturning brave.

JOHN WARNOCK.

MARY.—The last deliverance from "Confederate X Roads" opens thus:

The dead is dun, the work uv destroyin the Government is finished, and the Dimocrisy, the degenerit Dimocrisy, sits down and accepts it without a murmur. There ain't agoin to be any struggle for our rites, ther ain't agoin to be any war, nor nothin. When Tilden wuz talkin of resistance I consoled myself with the idee that if I coodent get a postoffis I mite her a sutlership, but all that is gone.

RABIES.—The following, from the Jersey City Herald, will show that certain Eastern papers have a political rabies about as bad as any case in Oregon:

We should like to know where is the honest man of either party whose stomach is not sick over that red-whiskered fraud in the White House. Such a stink is enough to destroy all faith in honesty or mankind. It is disgusting enough to make a strong man puke.

Monday Evening, April 2, 1877.

Gold in New York, 104¾.

The market shows no important transactions or changes, and presents but few matters that call for comment. The several banking institutions report a moderate volume of business, and a fair outlook for the future. The near approach of the more active operations incident to the spring season is beginning to be felt in monetary circles, and though there is no scarcity of funds available for the ordinary purposes of trade, the borrowers do not so fully command the situation.

In trade matters but few changes are noticeable, and aside from a tolerably active demand for some minor articles, the market for domestic produce may be regarded as unusually dull. Intimations of an improvement in the foreign breadstuffs market are given in our dispatches, but the advance comes too late to be of general benefit to the producers of this State, unless it is held up until another harvest.
